

Dear Chairman Powell and Commissioners,
Television coverage of political campaigns has been of quality and quantity far below what it should be. This is not acceptable for the United States of America. Broadcasters should provide public service by providing adequate quality coverage of election campaigns in exchange for their share of the electromagnetic spectrum, as Congress intended.

Since broadcasters have clearly failed in their obligation to serve the public interest, the FCC should define meaningful public interest requirements that include local civic and electoral affairs programming. At a minimum, broadcasters should air three hours per week of local civic and electoral affairs programming, with at least two hours devoted to substantive election coverage in the six weeks prior to Election Day.

Sincerely,

Daniel Holbert
